Notable features:

A pleasant trio of tiny houses set alone between the Hebrew Cemetery and the rear yards of the houses on Carey Street. These three and the three at 1225-1229 W. Saratoga Street back up to one another and are exactly the same. They probably were built at the same time by one developer.

Environmental context:

These houses give a pleasant edge to the open ground of St. Luke's. Rankin Place is narrow with no other houses facing on it, only the north sides of the church, the Clergy House, plus the sides of Carey Street houses, the Cemetery wall, a garage and the south end of the school.
